Thank you for your enquiry about membership of the Garden Design Study Group [GDSG]. The Australian Native Plants Society (Australia) Incorporated [ANPSA] is the national coordinating body for the various Native Plant Societies formed in each State. The Study Groups are national in nature and therefore under the umbrella of ANPSA. The GDSG was formed nationally in 1993, originally administered from Victoria, then New South Wales, then Canberra, now Queensland.

ANPSA has established specific Rules and By-Laws to govern the activities of Study Groups and has also appointed a National Study Group Coordinator to ensure the smooth running of all the various Study Groups operating throughout Australia.

The following extract from the ANPSA By-Laws defines the requirements for Study Group membership:

ANPSA By-Law III – STUDY GROUPS
A Study Group shall consist of individual members of Member Societies, Member Societies, local groups and branches. All individual members of a Study Group must be a member of one of the state based ANPSA Member Societies.

MEMBERSHIP APPLICATION

Membership of the Garden Design Study Group is free. Four GDSG Newsletters are distributed each year by email – August, November, February & May. In addition occasional related garden design information is also distributed by email, and in the various states face to face meetings and excursions are held to which all members are encouraged to attend.
